

Agronomy / Research Intern

At Peterson Farms Seed, we are an independent seed company with an obsessive commitment to agricultural research. We have built a solid reputation as the premier corn and soybean testing organization in the Northern Plains, and not by accident.

Our dedicated research team plants thousands of replicated plots throughout the tri-states and our data has been trusted by major breeding programs for over 17 years.

Position:	Agronomy / Research Intern
Position Description:	Support the company's testing and research efforts
Reports to:	Research Manager
Qualifications:	Current educational work in an agricultural discipline Personable and friendly Hard-working Curious and eager to learn Farm equipment experience is beneficial

Responsibilities:

1. Learn about how product testing works
 - Assist with planning, planting, and maintaining plots, including seed counting, stand counts, and signing.
 - Assist with note-taking, including emergence, height, flowering, maturity.
 - Assist with IDC research blocks, including counting, planting, and scoring.
 - Travel to 30+ corn, soybean and wheat research sites as needed.
 - Gain general agronomy skills such as scouting along with weed and insect identification.
2. As time allows, learn about precision ag and marketing, including some of the following:
 - Learn and perform drone scouting, stand counts and in-season plant health.
 - Assist with agronomic study plots, including weekly monitoring, emergence, stand counts, photography, and drone imagery.
 - Assist with field signs for plots and customer fields.
 - Help set up and attend Dealer Kickoff and other events as needed.